For Institutional Investors – Not for Onward Distribution

Investment Process

We seek to invest in companies that are uniquely positioned to benefit from the growth potential in emerging markets and that possess a sustainable global competitive advantage.

Sustainable Earnings

We believe over the long term a stock's price is directly related to the company's ability to deliver sustainable earnings. We determine a company's sustainable earnings based upon financial and strategic analyses. Our financial analysis focuses on identifying historical drivers of return on equity, and our strategic analysis examines a company's competitive advantages and financial strength.

Sustainability Assessment

We believe a company's long-term direction and degree of change across multiple environmental, social and governance ("ESG") metrics are important indicators of a company's sustainable growth potential. Our sustainability assessment has incident-based and empirical components to evaluate a company's historical, current and future potential behavior. We use a proprietary scoring system for the incident-based and empirical components of the assessment, which informs the team's view of a company's target price.

Risk Analysis

We believe a disciplined risk framework allows greater focus on fundamental stock selection. We incorporate our assessment of company-specific, sustainability and country-appropriate macroeconomic risk factors into our valuation analysis.

Valuation

We believe that investment opportunities develop when businesses with sustainable earnings are undervalued relative to peers and historical industry, country and regional valuations. We value a business and develop a price target based on its sustainable earnings and our risk analysis.

Team Overview

Team experience, continuity and a rigorous investment process are the characteristics that we believe differentiate our team from other emerging markets investment managers. Research analysts have autonomy and ownership of their regions and accountability for the success of their ideas. Our team members bring deep experience and uncommon insight to their respective areas of responsibility.

Past performance does not predict future returns. Performance is NAV to NAV, including reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, if any, and is net of fees and expenses, excluding any subscription or redemption charges which may be levied. At the moment, the Fund does not intend to charge subscription or redemption fees. The Fund may be offered in different share classes, which are subject to different fees, expenses and inception dates (which may affect performance), have different minimum investment requirements and are entitled to different services. Funds are actively managed and are not managed to a benchmark index.

Investment Risks: Investments will rise and fall with market fluctuations and investor capital is at risk. Investors investing in funds denominated in non-local currency should be aware of the risk of currency exchange fluctuations that may cause a loss of principal. These risks, among others, are further described on the last page, which should be read in conjunction with this material.

Portfolio Discussion

2024 was a tale of two halves for emerging markets (EM), marked by a strong start that gave way to mounting global pressures. Early in the year, easing inflation and central banks shifting toward less restrictive monetary policies across EM fueled optimism for higher economic growth. However, this momentum faded as the year progressed, weighed down by concerns about global trade headwinds tied to the US presidential election outcome, unresolved geopolitical conflicts in Ukraine and the Middle East, and lingering doubts about the effectiveness of China's stimulus measures. The MSCI Emerging Markets Index declined in Q4, partially offsetting gains from earlier in the year. China, India and Korea were the MSCI Emerging Markets Index's main detractors, while Taiwan and the UAE were the primary contributors. Our portfolio performed slightly better than the index during Q4.

Our portfolio's top relative contributors in Q4 included Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company (TSMC), Vista Energy and Estun Automation. TSMC is the world's largest dedicated chip foundry. Shares of TSMC performed well in Q4, driven by its pivotal role in the growing artificial intelligence (AI) ecosystem. The surge in AI applications across industries has amplified demand for TSMC's advanced semiconductors, particularly as the primary manufacturer of NVIDIA's AI chips. TSMC's unmatched capabilities in advanced packaging, a critical bottleneck in the global AI chip supply chain, make it uniquely suited to benefit from the increasing demand for computing power. We remain confident in its long-term growth prospects.

Vista Energy is an Argentine oil and gas exploration and production company that delivered strong Q3 financial results, driven by robust production levels and efficient midstream operations. The stock also gained from growing investor optimism in Argentina's economic recovery and its energy sector. With its abundant natural resources, Argentina's energy outlook is promising, and Vista Energy is poised to play a key role, particularly as the country expands into the export market. Our recent discussions with management highlighted the company's commitment to sustainability, reinforcing its role in Argentina's transition toward a more responsible energy future.

Estun Automation, a leading Chinese robotics manufacturer, demonstrated resilience in Q4 amid mixed investor sentiment about the impact of China's stimulus measures. Confidence in the domestic automation sector remains strong, and we believe Estun is in a favorable position to capitalize on China's push for industrial innovation. The Chinese government plans to modernize manufacturing infrastructure by emphasizing investment in advanced technologies and accelerating the integration of industrial robots. Estun is already a leader in China's robotics market, and it is poised to expand its market share as the country transitions to a new phase of industrial automation.

Our main relative detractors in Q4 included China Traditional Chinese Medicine (CTM), GPS Participacoes e Empreendimentos and Havells India. CTM, the largest producer of traditional Chinese medicine granules, faced notable pressure in Q4 after Sinopharm unexpectedly withdrew from acquisition talks. The subsequent exit of event-driven funds, which had positioned for a buyout, exacerbated the stock's decline. Despite this short-term setback, we remain optimistic about CTM's prospects, which are supported by the continued adoption of traditional medicine and the company's high-quality products. We believe CTM is well positioned to lead the modernization and standardization of the rapidly expanding traditional Chinese medicine industry, driving long-term sustainable growth.

GPS, Brazil's leading outsourcing provider, offers a comprehensive portfolio of services, including facilities management, security personnel and industrial logistics. Despite its strong operational performance, the company's stock was adversely affected by Brazil's challenging macroeconomic environment. Rising inflation and concerns over fiscal deficit management weighed on investor sentiment. The Brazilian real significantly depreciated to record lows against the US dollar, further exacerbating economic instability. Nevertheless, we remain confident in GPS' proven ability to execute effectively in volatile conditions, reinforcing our positive outlook on the company's long-term prospects.

Havells, a leading fast-moving electrical goods company in India, faced headwinds due to weaker margins despite steady revenue growth. Increased advertising expenses during the festive season and investments in new marketing initiatives contributed to short-term margin pressure. However, we believe these factors will normalize in the coming quarters. With its diverse product portfolio and market leadership, we believe Havells remains well equipped to capitalize on India's growing demand for electrical goods, supporting our confidence in its long-term growth potential.

Portfolio Activity

We made several strategic changes to our portfolio in Q4, with a focus on Korea. We exited our position in Samsung Electronics and added SK Hynix, a Korean semiconductor manufacturer. We believe SK Hynix is better positioned to capitalize on the rapid advancements in AI by leveraging its proven technological capabilities to meet the growing demand for advanced chips.

We also initiated positions in two other Korean companies: HD Hyundai Electric and Doosan Enerbility. HD Hyundai Electric is a key player in the global energy industry, specializing in advanced electrical equipment and solutions. With a strong revenue base in the US and the Middle East, the company has established itself as one of the largest power transformer manufacturers in these markets. We believe it is well suited to benefit from the rising demand for power transformers in the US, playing a critical role in advancing the nation's transition to a more sustainable energy infrastructure.

Doosan Enerbility, a global leader in advanced engineering and manufacturing, stands out for its expertise in nuclear energy technology. As global energy demand rises, the company's innovations in nuclear reactor technology, combined with its commitment to safety and efficiency, position it as a critical contributor to sustainable development. We believe Doosan Enerbility is essential to ensuring a stable and clean energy future, and it aligns with our long-term investment priorities.

Perspective

Our 2025 investment outlook is shaped by a mix of political, economic and technological trends that we believe will create opportunities for EM investors. Policy shifts following pivotal 2024 elections in several EM countries will likely drive sector-specific growth and create market dislocations. While political uncertainty may introduce short-term volatility, it should lead to mispriced assets and more attractive access points into markets typically trading at high valuations.

We are particularly excited by the rapid pace of technological development within EM. These countries are at the forefront of transformative trends such as AI, electrification and clean energy. Such advancements offer compelling opportunities to invest in companies driving innovation and shaping the future of global industries.

Valuations in select EM regions remain attractive relative to historical norms and developed markets. We believe the current landscape offers fertile ground to uncover opportunities with significant upside potential. We remain committed to our disciplined, bottom-up fundamental analysis, focusing on companies with sustainable earnings and strong growth potential to deliver long-term value in 2025.

In addition, we look forward to sharing our annual Sustainability Report, which we plan to publish in Q1 2025. This year, we focus again on the importance of engagement and our interpretation of sustainability as a company's ability to endure. We believe companies that endure are resilient and capable of sustainable growth over time, which makes for compelling long-term investment opportunities. In today's volatile environment, staying true to our core values—active engagement, sustainability as a driver of resilience and our bottom-up fundamental approach—remains of utmost importance.

International investments involve special risks, including currency fluctuation, lower liquidity, different accounting methods and economic and political systems, and higher transaction costs. These risks typically are greater in emerging and less developed markets, including frontier markets. Such risks include new and rapidly changing political and economic structures, which may cause instability; underdeveloped securities markets; and higher likelihood of high levels of inflation, deflation or currency devaluations. Securities of small- and medium-sized companies tend to have a shorter history of operations, be more volatile and less liquid and may have underperformed securities of large companies during some periods. The costs associated with this fund will impact your return over time. Investments will rise and fall with market fluctuations and investor capital is at risk. Investors investing in funds denominated in non-local currency should be aware of the risk of currency exchange fluctuations that may cause a loss of principal. These risks, among others, are further described in the Fund Documents.
